NBI Ultra Short-Term Fixed Income Fund

F Series
Category: Canadian Corporate Fixed Income

Investment Objective

Generate interest income while minimizing the effects of interest-rate fluctuations. The fund invests directly, or through investments in securities of other mutual funds, in a portfolio composed mainly of fixed-rate Canadian bonds (either corporate, governmental or municipal) and/or preferred shares issued by North-American companies and enters into derivatives transactions to generate a floating rate of income. Floating-rate income can therefore be obtained by swapping, through the use of derivatives, the rate of a fixed-income security for the short-term floating rate in effect at the time of the swap less the fees payable to the counterparty in relation to the derivative transactions. The short-term floating rate used will correspond to the Canadian Overnight Repo Rate Average (CORRA). The derivatives will be entered into with counterparties having a designated rating.
